

CONTENT SEQUENCE

In this Program, the students make definite and consistent progress toward the goal of becoming qualified OTAs through a series of learning experiences carefully arranged over a period of four semesters. At each stage, the students develop interpersonal communications skills, and learn to consider the person, environmental and occupational performance issues that limit or facilitate a person's engagement in life. Students learn to understand, perform, and teach the processes involved in specific life occupations. Students participate in oral presentations, teaching experiences, skill competencies and written assignments at increasingly complex levels throughout the Program.

The opportunity to practice techniques and skills is upgraded throughout the courses beginning with the opportunity to participate in OTA 1140 OT Documentation with Fieldwork A (primarily observing patients, practicing some basic skills). The second experience, OTA 1260 Level I Fieldwork B opportunity for more hands-on experience in a variety of practice settings. In OTA 2160 Fieldwork C, students are provided more intense Level I Fieldwork for the purpose of practicing more specific techniques which have been presented in all OTA courses, especially treatment courses. OTA 2210 Level II Fieldwork A and OTA 2220 Level II Fieldwork B are the final opportunities to integrate and apply academically acquired knowledge.
